London, Februry 14.

The Proceeding of the most considerable of the Protestant Swiss Cantons to procure a Neutrality for Savoy, appearing but obscurely by the Accounts that have been given in the publick Prints, (which were oblig'd to relate it by Slips and Pieces as the Posts (that of late have come irregularly) arriv'd; We judge it worth while to look a little back, and in one continued short Relation, to shew the Steps those Cantons have already taken to obtain the said Neutrality, and in what State the last Advices left that Affair. In doing which we shall repeat but very little of what has been incerted in former Courants.

WHEN the Marshal de Thesse was advanc'd into Savoy with a Body of French Troops, had taken Possession of Chamberi, made an Incurfion in Person as far as la Roche, and sent out Parties to Thounon and Eviau, quite up to the Lake of Geneva, the Cantons of Bern and Friburg thought it high time to dispatch 2 Deputies to him, who arriv'd at Chamberi after the departure of the Marshal de Thesse to take upon him the command of the French Troops on the Secchia, but found there the Duke de la Feuillade, to whom they address'd themselves, desiring him, in the Name of their Principals, to forbear Hostilities in Savoy; the Duke sent them back with this Answer, 'That it was not in his power to suspend Hostilities in Savoy without expresse Orders from the King his Master, But that he would send a Messenger to acquaint his Majesty with the Business of their Deputation. This he did accordingly, and the King of France signified to the Cantons that he was ready to yield to the Neutrality demanded for Savoy, on condition all the Places of Strength in it should be put into the Hands of the Swiss, and that those Garrisons should be paid by his Majesty and the D. of Savoy, that there should be a Passage left open through Savoy for keeping up a Communication with his Army in Italy, that Passports to that effect should be deliver'd out by the Helvetick Body, and that Piemont should be compris'd in this Neutrality, or at least that no Swiss Troops should serve his Royal Highness in Piemont. Which being communicated to the D. of Savoy, he return'd Answer, That he was determin'd much rather to push on the War at all Adventures, and not to tye up his Hands, by a Neutrality of which the French would reap all the Advantage. Hereupon the Canton of Bern nominated 4 Persons to go to the Canton of Friburg and desire them to name 4 Persons likewise, who might all go to the Canton of Zurich, to consult together what was further to be done to obtain a Neutrality for Savoy. Of which the Marquess de Puissieux being inform'd, he wrote the following Letter to the Canton of Zurich.

Magnificent Lords!

YOU are inform'd, no doubt, that the Laudable Canton of Bern has sent Deputies to that of Friburg, to endeavour to possess them with an Opinion that the late Conquest of Savoy by the Troops of the King my Master, is very prejudicial to the Interest of the Laudable Helvetick Body, and that the said Laudable Canton would do well to dispatch Deputies along with theirs to you, and to give them Instructions to use their best Endeavours to perswade you to joyn with them in a Deputation to me, to propose that I should desire his Majesty in your Names to withdraw all his Troops out of Savoy, and to let that part of the Dominions of his Royal Highness enjoy a perfect Neutrality. Their Design in demanding such a Neutrality seems to be, to put that Prince into a Condition to furnish himself from Savoy with all things necessary for carrying on the War the more easily against the two Crowns in Italy, and, if possible, to possess himself of the Duchy of Milan.

The Deputies of Bern and Friburg are commission'd to signify to me besides, or to write to his Majesty, that in case he will not comply with their Request, They shall be very sorry to be oblig'd to furnish Troops to the D. of Savoy, to enable him to recover all the Country of which the King my Master's Troops have possess'd themselves, but that they cannot help doing it.

Will not your Surprise be equal to mine, Magnificent Lords, when you shall be satisfied that some of the Laudable Cantons have taken Resolutions of such a Nature? Resolutions so warm, and of so great Consequence? Will you not apprehend that the Enemies of the King my Master may hope to have very shortly no cause to envy the happy Tranquility, which by the Superiority of his Majesty's Arms you now enjoy, while Europe is in a Flame? Having had sufficient Experience, Magnificent Lords, of your Prudence and Moderation, I have not hesitated one Moment to inform you of the Resolutions taken by the Cantons of Bern and Friburg, to the end that before their Deputies arrive you may wisely reflect upon their Conduct, and in consequence represent to them, how prejudicial their Resolutions are to the Interest and Quiet of the Helvetick Body.

You are not ignorant, Magnificent Lords, that his Majesty's Troops have conquer'd all Savoy, except Montmeillan: And doubtless you will call to mind, that you disapprov'd the Proposal made by the Sieur Mellarede, when he demanded a Neutrality for Savoy only, without including Piemont, at the time when his Master was in Possession of the Duchy of Savoy.

After so justly refusing your Approbation of so unreasonable a Demand, is it to be imagin'd you can be for a War against the King my Master, and for undertaking to drive his Troops out of a Country, of which the chief Passages and most considerable Posts are in their Possession? No, Magnificent Lords, you can never take such pernicious Courses, the fatal Consequences of which you foresee too plainly, nor to prevent them by your prudent Councils and wise Conduct.

I make no doubt but the King my Master is still dispos'd to yield to a Neutrality for the Dominions of the D. of Savoy, tho' that Prince has absolutely rejected it, and in so doing has in spite of him prov'd himself to be the Aggressor, that he only is the Cause of the Alarm some Cantons feign they are in, and is directly the Author of the Troubles which the Cantons of Bern and Friburg, at the Instigation of that Prince's Agents are raising in the Laudable Helvetick Body, by the warm Resolutions they have taken.

It seems, Magnificent Lords, some Men would assist him who kindled the War in your Neighbourhood, against him who so generously offers to establish Tranquility there. I have just cause to flatter my self, that your wise Representations will have all the Effect upon the Cantons of Bern and Friburg that may be reasonably expected from the Prudence and Sagacity that shines in all your Discourses and Actions: Upon this Foundation I ground my hopes, that you will render fruitless all the Efforts of the Enemies of the King my Master to disturb the Peace of your dear Country.

The glorious Tranquility the Laudable Helvetick Body

Body has enjoy'd, ever since they contracted Alliance with France, the Care your illustrious Ancestors constantly took to do nothing that might weaken those Alliances, are Examples to which you will undoubtedly have an Eye on this Occasion, and I perswade my self you will most chearfully follow them. Magnificent Lords, I will inform the King of the prudent Steps you shall take in this Affair, and I can assure you his Majesty will not be wanting to make you a suitable acknowledgment.

Soluthurn, Jan. 18. 1704. Sign'd

Puisieux.

The Deputies of Bern, with those of Friburg, proceeded to Zurich, and had several Conferences with Deputies nominated by that Canton, which ended in these Resolutions, 1. That a Letter should be written to the Marquess de Puisieux in the Name of the 13 Cantons, to remind him of the Promise he made to the last General Assembly, to acquaint his Master by a Letter how uneasy the Cantons were at the Neighbourhood of his Troops in Savoy, and to desire him for their Sakes to grant a Neutrality to that Province. 2. That the 13 Cantons should have Copies of this Letter transmitted to them; and should be press'd to enter into the same Views, to the end that in case the K. of France should not give them the Satisfaction desir'd, the Cantons of Zurich, Bern, Lucern, and Friburg, might be empower'd by all the rest to send a new Deputation to the said Marquess to signify to him in express Terms, that the Cantons look upon the Neutrality of Savoy as a thing inseparable from the common Security of the Helvetick Body. It was likewise resolv'd, that Monsieur Hirzel, Secretary of Zurich, should carry the Letter abovemention'd; and verbally demand a speedy Answer. And the last Advices tell us he is actually gone from Zurich with it.
